DETAILED ACTION

1. This application contains claims 8-14 drawn to an invention nonelected with traverse in Paper No. 23 April 2002. A complete reply to the final rejection must include cancellation of nonelected claims or other appropriate action (37 CFR 1.144) See MPEP § 821.01.

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Takeuchi et al. (U.S. 5,733,499).

Takeuchi et al. teaches a surface roughness of a ceramic sheet of less than .2 microns, the ceramic may be made of partially stabilized zirconia, a transition metal oxide may be used as a sintering aide and the sheet may be used as a fuel cell element (col. 4, lines 5-30, col. 6, lines 10-20 and col.

6, lines 55-65). The instant invention claims a ceramic sheet with a burr height and dimple height less than 100 microns. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art that a surface roughness of less than .2 microns would limit burr and dimple heights to less than 100 microns because of the teachings of Takeuchi et al. that low surface defects are desired (col. 1, lines 25-30).

4. Applicant's arguments filed 05 December 2002 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant argues that the Takeuchi et al. teaching of a smooth surface and minimum surface imperfections greater than 10 microns in height, applies only to micro surface features and not macro surface features such as edge burrs and surface waviness, which result from punching and baking of the ceramic greensheet. The position of the examiner is that Takeuchi et al. teaches an even thickness (col. 5, line 67) and an absence of surface defects along with excellent smoothness (col. 6, lines 15-20) and that there is no teaching in the reference that would exclude features such a burrs or dimples from being considered as surface imperfections and no teaching in the reference that an even thickness is compatible with waviness in the surface. There is no explicit teaching of waviness or burrs in Takeuchi et al. and no evidence of record that one of ordinary skill in the art would expect the process steps described in Takeuchi et al. to produce burrs or waviness. Thus the ceramic sheet of Takeuchi et al. is taken as meeting the less than 100 micron limitations for these features in the instant claims.

5. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
